

Hauptmann Zapfinger

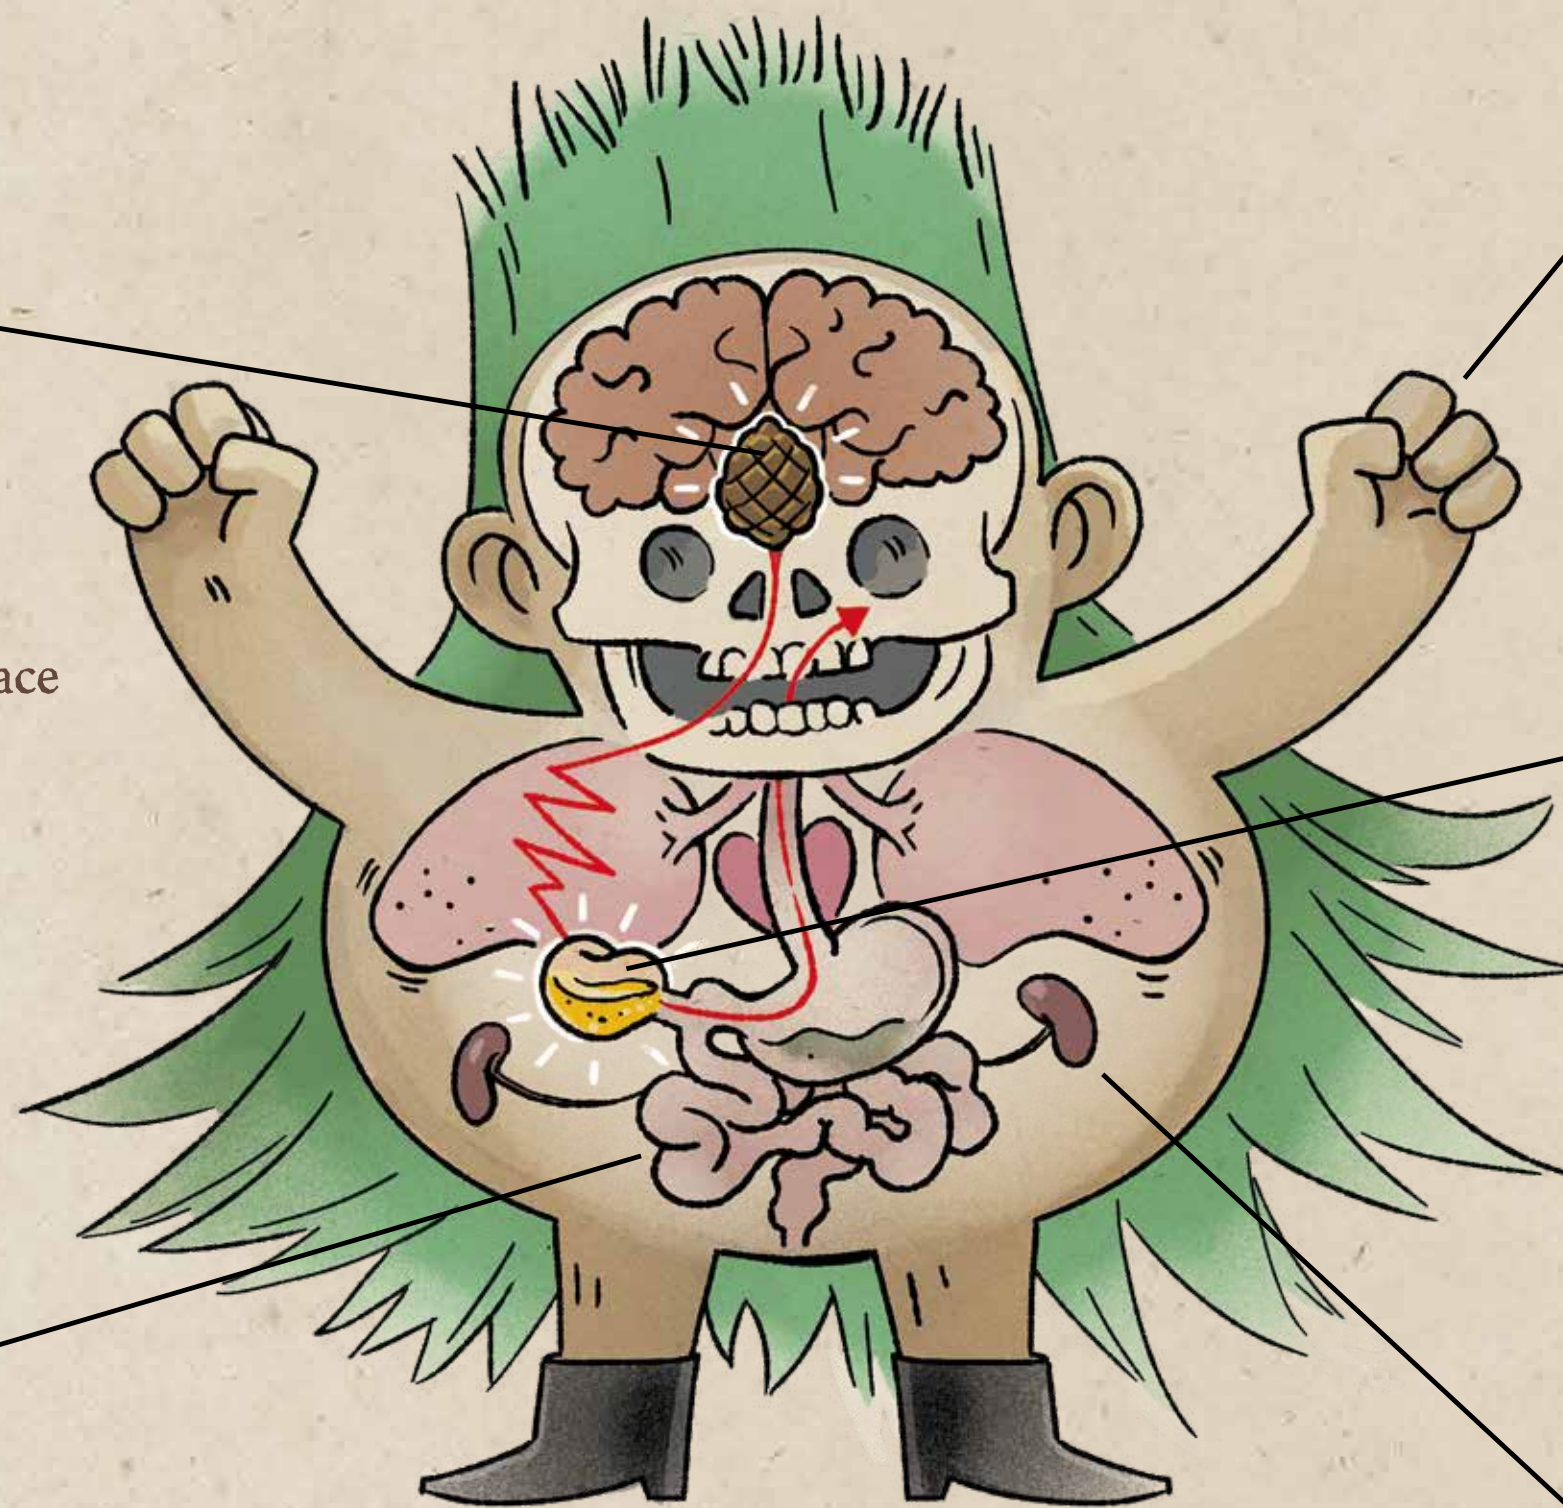

He is and remains loud. Hauptmann Zapfinger curses for all his worth. In his heart and soul, he is actually also kind and sweet, but he almost always only shows his bad side, probably due to a sick genetic joke.

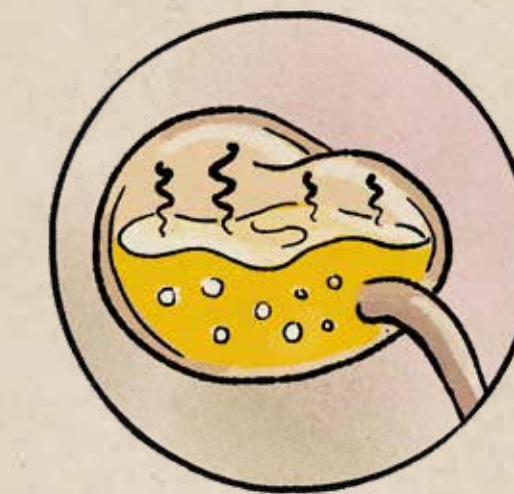

Zapfinger's gallbladder is directly short-circuited to his brain through his pineal gland. Zapfinger's thoughts below the surface regularly make themselves heard from here through his dubious vocabulary.

And if conciliatory, life-affirming and well-intentioned remarks should ever escape Zapfinger, they are most likely to be located in this tract.

Zapfinger's strong hands are constantly gripped tightly around the sceptre. This way they cannot be used to grab anything else.

Zapfinger's bile is always bubbling and boiling. The gallbladder is the origin and centre of Zapfinger's extremely hotheaded nature. Zapfinger's bodily fluids do not travel far enough to be able to cleanse them in a purification process.

What has crawled up through Zapfinger's liver again?!